

Duanjie Chen

Duanjie Chen is the George Weston Analyst in Tax Policy at the C.D. Howe Institute. She was a Research Associate at the International Tax Program, Rotman School of Management of the University of Toronto. She received her BA, MA and PhD in economics from Wuhan University in China and went to Yale University for post-doctorate study with a Fulbright Scholarship (1987-8) and a Ford Foundation Scholarship (1988-9). After receiving her MBA degree from the University of Toronto (1991), she served briefly as Economist and Tax Analyst at the Ontario Ministry of Finance and Ernst & Young, respectively, in the early 90's.

Since 1995, Dr. Chen has served as an external consultant to various international organizations (including the World Bank, Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development, and Inter-American Development Bank), national government bodies (including the Canadian Department of Finance, the Chinese Ministry of Finance, and the Bureau of Economic Analysis and the Bureau of Transportation Statistics of the United States), and business and non-profit organizations (including the Canadian Bureau of Insurance, the Thompson Group, the Institute for Competitiveness and Prosperity, and Procter and Gamble). She has published numerous articles and papers in the area of public finance, in addition to doing international consulting work in Latin America, Africa, Eastern Europe, and the Middle East.