

The C.D. Howe Institute Seeks a Policy Analyst

The C.D. Howe Institute, Canada's leading independent, non-partisan public policy research Institute is seeking a full-time policy analyst to join its internal research team. The position combines original research with review of work by outside authors, publishing, and presentation of conclusions to policymakers, business people, academics, and the media. The position's working level will depend on the assets the incumbent brings to the post. The ideal candidate will have:

- a postgraduate degree in economics or a field with a strong economics component;
- at least two to three years' work experience in the business, nonprofit, or public sectors;
- a solid grounding in theoretical and applied economics; empirical work on Canadian topics would be a definite asset;
- an active interest in Canadian policy issues, with some background in Canadian history, politics, and governance;
- a portfolio of written work demonstrating ability to frame issues, analyze options, and provide practical advice;
- above-average ability to communicate effectively, orally and in writing, to specialist and nonspecialist audiences; bilingualism would be an asset;
- facility with computer applications, including spreadsheets and statistical analysis (microsimulation experience would be a plus).

Salary and responsibilities will reflect training and experience. To be considered for this opportunity, interested candidates should forward their resume along with a covering letter by March 16 to:

Personnel Manager, C.D. Howe Institute, 300-67 Yonge Street, Toronto M5E 1J8
