

Andrew Spence is the Global Head of Rates and Foreign Exchange Research, TD Securities. Andrew has spent most of his career as an economist and strategist, offering strategic advice to institutional investors on the sell side. Whilst on the buy side at a large Canadian pension plan, Andrew directed the asset return forecasting process to guide long-term asset allocation, and also guided and managed the overlay program that managed overall balance sheet risk. During 2002 and 2003, Andrew was seconded to the Bank of Canada as Special Adviser to the Governor, and was an active member of the Monetary Policy Review Committee. He is a member of the C.D. Howe Institute's Monetary Policy Council.

Andrew started his career as an economist in at H.M. Treasury in London where he worked on developing macro economic policy advice for government ministers. He holds an M. Phil. in Economics from the University of Bath, England.